SUSTAINABLE DESIGN FOR SOCIAL IMPACT HANDMADE IN ESWATINI FROM 100% WASTE PAPER

What started as an experiment in craft with social impact has become a small thriving business with a solid community of local women artisans.

Lead by a designer and founded with the support of the local magazine distributors who wanted to recycled their waste.

We want to change the perception of recycled materials by focusing on developing new and innovative techniques using only waste paper.

Based in eSwatini our women artisans make each product by hand, with basic tools and the sun's rays., using only water based paints, pigments and glues.

eSwatini is a landlocked country in southern Africa, it is one of the world's last remaining absolute monarchies with an estimated population of 1.4 million. The country has exceptionally beautiful scenery, with an impressive array of landscapes, and mountains among the oldest in the world at 3.6 billion years. Unfortunately it has high levels of poverty, food insecurity, and unemployment.

We work with a small community of women artisans who have been with us since we started.
Sibongile was our first artisan and became our production manager.

Our products are handmade and recycled so variation is expected. Each item is beautifully unique, showing the hand of the maker.

We use natural pigments to dye our paper. For example; the Lime colour is textured with lime, while the sand and clay pulp is dyed with local red ochre from the earth, and the charcoal pulp uses black oxide.

We only use water based paints and glues and have created variations in our colour options with waste coffee to add a subtle touch of specks!

Each product is coated in eco varnish for durability, meaning you can wipe them clean but they are not water proof.

Any questions please get in touch.
